- The first book ever on »plant-based paints«
- An overview on the development and relevance of paints especially in the Middle Ages
- Useful information and a number of recipes for preparing paints

Plant-based paint goes back to ancient traditions. This book takes us on an expedition to the amazingly colourful world of natural and plant-based dyes and provides a detailed and practical description of how to prepare paint out of these. Unlike synthetic paint, natural paint has a matchlessly sensual and lively effect. Plant-based paints differ in particular due to their unique structure and composition. It is true that they have only limited durability, however they amaze us with their inimitable colour shades.

Comprehensive, richly illustrated, offering relevant background information and practical tips. A book for anyone interested in natural paint, suitable for schools, hobby painters and artists.

Helena Arendt: Studied art and art pedagogy, works as art pedagogue, since 1992 freelance artist focusing on painting with natural paints and plastic using the smoking technique. Since 1998 intensified work with plant paints, workshops and lectures on the subject in Germany and South Africa. Subject specialist. Contributions to professional books, numerous exhibitions.

- A humorous cleanup coach
- Recipes for an inspiring and unique home
- Find your own strategy—dare to make profound changes

Junk and disarray are just as depressing as meticulous order and pedantic tidiness. How can we create a lively home that allows us to breathe and unfold? In this book, Katharina Auerswald shows us what to do. She developed and tested her recipes for creative tidiness during her many years as a cleanup coach. They help you right where you get stuck – on a general level but also with very concrete issues, like an ever-growing »dump« in the corridor. She gives the most practical answers to questions such as: How to prepare for decluttering? What to keep, what to dispose of? What if the others are reluctant to join in the effort, or worse, we cannot even bring ourselves to get started? Through a number of practical examples, thoughts on minimalism and sustainability, as well as a witty sense of humour she inspires and encourages us to let go and find our very own tidiness.

Katharina Auerswald: Freelance consultant focusing on office arrangement, cleanup coach. Various appearances on Bavarian television. Regular publications in professional journals. Teaches in seminars and lectures.

- Adventures right outside our doorstep
- Outdoor experiences with the female star of the German bushcraft scene
- Practical knowledge from the renowned survival coach

You do not need a wooden cabin far from civilisation to enjoy some time out in the forest. You can embark on adventures in nature right here and now, outside your doorstep. Those who say that there is no wilderness in Germany are thoroughly mistaken. If you are susceptible to it, you will find true treasures of nature around the corner. Pack your knapsack, immerse yourself into the forest, set up camp, cook something nice, and spend the night all by yourself. It is possible! But how? This book is a guide for anyone eager to explore nature on their own. It offers sound practical advice by famous survival coach Vanessa Blank on bushcraft, survival strategies, outdoor life in wild nature, equipment, possible dangers, natural medicine, wild cuisine, legal considerations, and much more. Off you go to the wilderness!

Vanessa Blank: Trained childcare worker and mother of three children. She publishes her outdoor adventures on YouTube with great success and has worked as a freelance survival coach for two years. She proves that outdoor activities are not just a man's thing.

- Delicate jewellery, design objects and paper art
- How to turn natural materials into elegant treasures
- Detailed instructions and basic techniques

Nature is rich in hidden treasures: the nibbled on leaf on the bush, the wondrous seed capsule on the ground, the graceful poppy by the side of the road...

Unique natural materials play the leading role in this book, they undergo a fascinating transformation and become charming objects that deserve to be in the spotlight. Combined with origami paper or decorated with gold highlights they turn into astonishing jewellery, delicate little objects of art, and heart-warming gifts. The fragile little objects are stylish, playful, and elegant, and nothing like the rustic fir cone decorations of childhood days. Embossed gift-wrapping paper or fragile mobiles, delicate earrings or floral door curtains. With detailed instructions for each project and guidelines on the most common techniques for gold coating, origami, as well as for flower and leaf collection and pressing. A declaration of love to the beauty of small things and the abundance of nature.

Ruth Cortinas: Born in Monterrey, Mexico, since 2014 freelance illustrator. She draws for children's books and teaching materials, as well as for various magazines. Courses and workshops on creative design for children and adults.

- For the first time ever: the most significant heritage textile techniques neatly explained
- Working with sustainable, long-lasting materials
- Easy to implement instructions, useful outcomes

Experiencing the history of crafts, discovering cultural heritage!

Textiles »touch« us all. To manufacture and embellish them, appropriate crafting techniques such as twining, nalbinding, braiding, or tablet weaving were developed very early on. This historically reliable text- and workbook presents forgotten and rediscovered textile techniques from as far back as the Stone Age up until the 19th century from all over Europe, all of which are part of today's immaterial cultural heritage. The fascinating history of textile crafts encourages us to give it a try. There is a multitude of possibilities: preparing fibre and spinning yarn, twisting cord, making ribbons and braids, manufacturing and refining various fabrics. Introductions to different techniques are followed by detailed guidelines and creative ideas for projects, complemented by practical tips. Manufacture your own straw ropes, silk cords, ribbon belts, wool cuffs, or gloves made from simple, natural materials, using these ancient techniques. No expertise, special materials, or specific tools are required.

- Traditional crafts rediscovered
- Ancient handicraft techniques from the Middle Ages
- Working with wood, pith, bast, bark, resin, leaves, roots, and fruit. From maple to willow, from cane to cow parsley

Ordinary plants found in towns, forests and on meadows are often ideal for dyeing, fabrics, and braiding and make excellent material for creative crafting and playing: charcoal, ink or torch, egg whisk or basket, even toys and simple musical instruments can be crafted this way. 30 short plant portraits explain their most important characteristics as well as their traditional and current use. Inspired by ancient crafting techniques, customs, and historical records, the author presents more than 200 simple instructions on how to create a vast number of practical, useful, and decorative objects. Apart from well known materials such as straws and willow rods some already forgotten ones like cane pith or lime bast are rediscovered. A treasure chest and inspiration for anyone interested in plants and passionate about outdoor and bushcraft fun, be it adults or children.

Doris Fischer: Archaeological excavation technician and author of three workbooks on medieval topics. She is devoted to the study of ancient crafting techniques and traditional plant usage, active in environmental education, and runs workshops on wool dyeing and spinning.

Awards for this book

- Recipes for health, kitchen, and garden
- Detailed guidelines on fibre manufacturing and creative ideas
- The nettle as protagonist in myths, folk tales, and rites

A Comprehensive Portrait of the Nettle

The nettle is used for healing and as food – in the past mostly during times of need, today even in fine dining – but also in gardening and pet care. Legends, magic spells, and ritualistic uses render ample proof of its importance in many cultures. Moreover, the author describes how to extract the fibres and use them as cords, for spinning and knotless knitting to manufacture handcrafted clothes, shoes, bags, and various other items. Uncomplicated instructions invite us to become creative and rediscover the nettle, a plant that grows everywhere around us. With the help of text, photos, and illustrations we get a thorough understanding of this ancient plant and its unique character.

Mechtilde Frintrup: Typographer, graphic designer, healing plant practitioner, and freelance (nature) artist. Offers courses, among others, on nettle fibre extraction.

Creativity starts in childhood!

Creativity is the key to personal growth, to boosting social and professional competencies. The ability to think creatively helps us cope with the challenges of everyday life. School education allows very little time to foster creativity that is not performance-focused. »Creative kids« shows parents, grandparents, and other caregivers how to playfully stimulate the creativity of children during their free time. All children inherently enjoy exploring, experimenting, and tinkering. By freely experimenting with a variety of materials children can benefit from a number of new experiences and make logical connections. Creative crafting opens the door to unleash their rich imagination and brings innumerable moments of joy. The book presents the six pillars that nurture uninhibited creativity as well as 55 practical examples that motivate young and old alike to start experimenting and become inventive.

- Building a wilderness camp with nothing but a pocket knife
- 63 new ideas for outdoor adventures
- Forest adventures on your doorstep

Following his highly successful first book, pocket knife expert Felix Immler's second book reveals how we can build a comfortable camp in the wilderness using nothing more than a pocket knife: Simple natural materials are used for making a waterproof roof, a chair, a bed, a table, a fridge, and an oven, as well as for carving spoons, knives, and bowls. A tasty chicken is grilled on a self-made, water-driven skewer. The book is full of ideas for exciting and thrilling activities right on our doorstep, for both children and teens.

- Plenty of exciting handicraft ideas, from flute to catapult
- Learn how to safely use a pocket knife
- Detailed step-by-step instructions

Pocket knives put a spell on many people, especially youths. This book strives to enable parents, pedagogues and teachers to assist children with the proper use of pocket knives, setting a sensible and secure framework of activities. Through illustrated step-by-step instructions, the book presents 26 handicraft projects of multiple difficulty levels, yet each easy to carry out – flying objects, simple musical instruments, boats, wind wheels, catapults and blowtubes. All of these can be made using nothing but a pocket knife and wood saw. The book also covers basics such as safety rules, techniques how to use the most important tools as well as instructions how to appropriately clean pocket knives. A so-called »pocket knife exam« suitable for youth groups will show whether the children fully familiarized themselves with the basic techniques. This book was written in cooperation with Victorinox, the leading manufacturer of Swiss pocket knives.

- The first comprehensive book on dyeing wool with plants
- Environmentally sustainable procedures
- Step by step guidelines for each plant

A universal, thousands-of-years old handcraft!

In this book, Dieter Kaiser gives a uniquely detailed and thorough illustration of the various techniques and methods for dyeing with plants, suitable for amateurs at home but also in support of a more successful professional outcome, for instance to ameliorate the life circumstances of people in developing countries. Plants can generate gorgeous colours while being 100% environmentally friendly. However only few of them are suitable to produce consistent results: with the help of meticulous basic recipes and detailed, well-illustrated step-by-step instructions the author shows us how to create an inexhaustible number of harmonizing colours using dyer's weed, indigo, catechu, wild madder, or cochineal.

Dieter Kaiser: Professional plant dyer for more than 40 years, working with wool and silk.

Together with his wife Christa Laiß he teaches techniques of natural dyeing in Germany and many other countries worldwide on behalf of various organisations. He holds courses and lectures on the topic of natural dyeing, and is also active in vocational training.

»For us as consumers, the perception of colours is a completely subconscious, self-evident act. The producers of consumer goods, however, are well aware of the power that colours have and how they can be used to seduce us. Colours are a fundamental component of how we perceive the world.«– Dieter Kaiser

- How to turn photographs into unique works of art
- Creative design and crafting with photos. Ideas and instructions for very special photo projects
- Experiments using a wide range of techniques

Photos can be transformed into personal, unique works of art in various ways, using a number of techniques and materials such as brush, paint, and press. But what manual techniques can copy a photo on a canvas or as decoration on a piece of furniture? How can it be inserted into the composition of a painting, or serve as first print for lithography, gravure, or screen printing? This book offers plenty of ideas and suggestions for playful creations with photos, as well as for mixed media techniques, collage, and wax experiments. Some methods are uncomplicated, easy to try at home, and require only very basic resources. Others are more complex and call for specific materials and utensils, as well as a certain expertise. Wherever possible, the book provides alternatives for a simple homemade version. A practical crafting and creativity book for beginners and experts – and for all those who enjoy playful design projects with photographs.

The US hype around the tiny house movement has hit Europe as well. The cultural, legal, and geographical conditions for this type of living space differ significantly on the two continents. The author provides instructions and tips on how to build and maintain a tiny house in Central Europe and presents several different building projects. The informative texts are accompanied by reports and interviews with numerous tiny house owners as well as many beautiful images.

If you start thinking about tiny houses, you are bound to bump into the following questions: Where am I allowed to build such a house? Is it warm enough in winter? Is a solar installation sufficient for power supply? Where do I get water from, and how do I dispose of sewage water? When building or purchasing a tiny house, a number of aspects need to be considered that are not relevant for other types of houses. The author and expert who has built his own tiny house gives answers to all possible questions in this fabulous book, taking into account the different requirements and legal frameworks of Switzerland, Germany, and Austria.

Towards new horizons. At home on the road

Traveling the world free and light-hearted in your own little home on wheels is a dream that a growing number of people actually choose to live. In this book Kevin Rechsteiner describes how you can make it happen and spend time in the most beautiful spots, while feeling perfectly at home. He portrays people who spend a lot of time on the road in their camper vans as well as people who even gave up their permanent residence for the experience. Some of them fitted their camper vans entirely themselves. But he also presents tinkerers who will equip camper vans for others. In all, we get a lively account of the increasingly popular experience of life in a camper van also known as van life. In addition, the book offers practical guidelines on how to equip a camper van DIY style. Where to get electricity from? How to ensure you have well-functioning and safe gas and water installations or sufficient insulation for winter? Our camper van expert answers all relevant questions, often with the help of detailed illustrations. Embark on the adventure that is van life!

Kevin Rechsteiner: Transformed a circus trailer into his own tiny house. During the project he lived in his old VW van.

- How to make children discover the joy and fun of gardening
- Playful work activities in the garden, on the balcony, and on the window sill
- Including experiments, handicraft projects, and recipes

With loving attention to detail and beautiful photos, this book will make kids discover the joy and fun of gardening. It arouses their curiosity, makes them observe and wonder. Using thoroughly selected types of vegetable and fruit, herbs, and flowers, the book explains the life cycle of plants, their characteristics, and needs in a most entertaining and child-friendly way. It encourages kids to dig in the earth, sow and hack, multiply shoots, do dyeing experiments and handicrafts with natural materials, build a hotel for insects, and prepare delicious dishes from the fruits and vegetables they harvest with their own hands. You don't even need to have a garden, as most of the projects can be carried out with a flower pot on the balcony or the window sill. With a host of kids-friendly garden projects, creative ideas, as well as handicraft and DIY instructions this book helps young gardeners discover the exciting world of the garden.

- An artistic discovery of nature
- The first book on the subject in German language
- For children starting from school age

Grasping nature with all our senses

Nature Art Journaling is the recording of observations and thoughts about nature in writing and images. This way, children discover the beauty of nature and capture their findings in a notebook. They observe, participate, develop appreciation and environmental consciousness, and they find their individual artistic mode of expression through different natural materials and techniques.

With challenging questions and age-appropriate information, this book invites to explore nature and it ignites a passion and hunger for knowledge. Via activities and projects, a year-round arts workshop familiarizes children with the characteristic atmosphere of each season which they then capture in their artworks.

This book is a guide and source of inspiration with numerous tips and ideas that nurture imagination, helps children find their individual way of expressing themselves without performance pressure, and takes kids on an exciting journey through the seasons that brings the love of nature to full bloom.

- Handicrafts, plant knowledge, and wild herb cuisine for children
- Crafting aesthetic and practical items with children using natural materials
- Various practical guidelines for families, playgroups, and schools

Making syrup from the first blooming spring herbs and carving a pipe from young wood. Lighting a fire in the old way and preparing soup together. Cooking natural soap and felting with sheep's wool. Making primitive tools such as a stone knife or bow. Cooking a forest balm on the campfire for our green medicine chest. Chocolate bananas from the embers and stories by the campfire round off a fine day. Plenty of practical guidelines demonstrate how to meaningfully experience nature from very close while tracing the cycle of the changing seasons. With the help of very simple tools we can create beautiful and useful things from natural materials. Experiencing nature from a close range and learning about natural rhythms of life equips children with strength and focus, and helps them to reach their full potential. The ideal way to satisfy their longing for a true life experience by drawing from elementary values and allowing space for their very own intuitive character.

- Cooking with kids in natural surroundings
- Getting acquainted with wild herbs and healing plants, Playful knowledge transfer
- Additional information for teachers and instructors

The book presents twelve plant portraits spreading over the four seasons. Children get to know wild garlic, goutweed, dandelion, stinging nettle, daisy, ribwort, rose hip, elder, marigold, hazelnut, spruce and coltsfoot in a playful way while collecting, preparing and cooking them at the open fire. Alongside simple everyday recipes that kids love, the book also offers many suggestions on how to preserve wild herbs. It presents the traditional use of these herbs for seasonal celebrations such as Easter, summer solstice, Saint Nicholas and Christmas. A separate section provides details on particular botanical, naturopathic and also mythological characteristics of each plant. Useful hints on possible confusion with other plants and a collectors' guide allow for broader insights on the quality of the portrayed plants. The book is rounded off with songs, stories, fairy tales and handicraft instructions.

Violette Tanner: Born 1965, trained healing plant specialist, ecopedagogue, author and mother of three. Over the past 20 years she has focused specifically on domestic healing plants in folk medicine and wild herbs for kitchen use. - The one and only practical guide to expressive embroidery
- Develop and create your own themes
- For beginners and experienced embroiderers

Painting with needle and thread!

Weaving makes warming cloth, knitting produces fluffy sweaters. And embroidery? It only serves one goal: to decorate and embellish. Ever since embroidered table and bedclothes largely disappeared from our households a new, exciting field has opened up: expressive embroidery.

This creative mode of expression has little in common with embroidering based on patterns, templates, or models. Embroidery can use different threads and a vast combination of stitches that offer endless creative possibilities. You can stitch practically anything!

This practical guide explains the most important types of stitches and raises the reader's awareness for the interplay of threads and colours, of materials and textures. The book is a »little school of creativity« that enables you to develop and craft your own ideas and themes.

Barbara Wälchli Keller: Offers creativity and embroidery workshops in her own textile studio in Central Switzerland as well as abroad. Author of books and teaching materials on fabrics.
